International Summer School in Neuroscience and Philosophy of Mind THE SOCIAL SELF

THE SCHOOL

A one-week interdisciplinary summer school on the contemporary research on philosophical and psychological models as well as neural mechanisms underlying the sense of the Self shaped through the intersubjective experience. This summer school is meant to bring major figures in philosophy, psychology and neuroscience together with younger scholars, graduate students, and postdocs to discuss the social roots of the Self. Research presentations, discussions, and tutorial sessions will allow researchers and students to share knowledge and interact.
